

If You Could Design the Perfect Risk Management System, What Would it Look Like?

Whether your organization is large or small, practices traditional loss prevention or has already begun the journey of enterprise-wide risk management (ERM), we will help you take your risk strategy to the next level of effectiveness and efficiency. We use a combination of design thinking, ISO 31000, COSO, and decision science to evaluate and optimize your approach to enterprise risk management.

Is Your ERM Strategy Working?

While traditional methods of risk management offer a strong start, ERM allows for system-wide improvements. Already there? We can help you leverage your enterprise risk strategy to drive change and create measurable value.

VALUE-DRIVEN ENTERPRISE RISK MANAGEMENT:
Increase value-creation opportunity by reducing uncertainty in decision-making

ENTERPRISE RISK MANAGEMENT:
Shared accountability for identifying, assessing, evaluating, monitoring and managing risk

TRADITIONAL RISK MANAGEMENT:
Loss prevention, loss control, and insurance

Every Problem Has a Solution

Design thinking not only facilitates our ability to co-create targeted, evidenced-based risk management solutions, but helps us to understand the needs of all stakeholders on a deeper, more human level.

Together with an ISO 31000, COSO, value-creating frame, clients can both retroactively and proactively identify, assess, evaluate, mitigate, and monitor risk.

Adding decision science to the evaluation process, we can consistently identify, structure, and quantify unknown variables, as well as measure the value of every proposed solution – including the cost of doing nothing. Decision science recognizes that every downside risk has an upside, a potential opportunity.

Let Us Help You Strengthen Your ERM Program By:

- Establishing a value framework with modern decision analysis tools
- Developing alternatives or options for action
- Evaluating alternatives using decision analysis and stochastic modeling
- Recommending specific value-creating actions
- Providing a business case analysis for proposed solutions

At Arete Our Mission is to Help You and Your Organization Succeed.